Chatham County Police Department Swears In Six New Officers

Chatham County, GA (July 31, 2020) – The Chatham County Police Department swore in six new police officers during a brief ceremony at headquarters this morning.

Typically, officers take their oath immediately after their Georgia Public Safety Training Center graduation, and then receive their badges at a formal pinning ceremony held by the Chatham County Police Department. Both events are attended by a large number of family, friends, and dignitaries, however, COVID-19 restrictions prevented both ceremonies from taking place. Instead, the officers were sworn in and presented their badges at a very brief ceremony in the headquarters squad room, which was attended only by several members of CCPD Command and training officers.

The new officers are:

Trinity Hamm

Jaquez Alexander

Joshua Gallipoli

Caleb Thompson

Ka'Deisha McCowen

Jose AlbinoDieppa

Chatham County Police Chief Jeff Hadley says the new officers will be honored with a formal ceremony, once COVID-19 conditions permit.
