Chatham County Public Works and Local Artists Install New Recycled Public Art Sculptures

Chatham County, GA (February 6, 2020) – On Saturday, February 8, 2020, at 3:00 pm Gallery F.A.R. (Fine Art of Recycling) Sculpture Garden at the Chatham County’s Resource Conservation Education Center (RCEC) will host an art reception for Joshua Gary.

Artist, Joshua Gary, says of his process, “My process begins by selecting pieces based on the aesthetic of their found form. These pieces are removed from the purpose they have served, and momentarily return to liquid while being manipulated to highlight a new state.”

Gallery F.A.R. Sculpture Garden is managed by RCEC. This facility exists to empower the community to conserve natural resources through promotion and education of the visual arts, via the display of contemporary mixed media design and fine crafts by local and regional artists. As a new addition to the Gallery F.A.R. programming the RCEC will now be displaying outdoor public art made by locals. Artist work must contain at least 70% reclaimed material.
