Chatham County Holds Ribbon Cutting for Ambuc Park

For Immediate Release

Chatham County, GA (April 14, 2026) - Chatham County officials, along with members of the Savannah Ambucs organization, cut the ribbon on Chatham County's first and only inclusive playground.

The park, located at 7230 Sallie Mood Dr., is the result of a collaboration between the Savannah Ambucs, a non-profit service organization dedicated to inspiring mobility and independence.

"When we look around Ambuc Park, we see more than just acres of green space; we see a commitment. This park has a special place in our county's heart because it was designed with a clear mission: accessibility for all," said Malinda Scott Hodge, District 2 Commissioner and Vice Chairman of the Chatham County Board of Commissioners.

The playground features a variety of fully inclusive equipment. It includes a wheelchair swing, a zero-entry merry-go-round, a sensory tunnel, zip lines, and many other accessible play features.

All of these elements are designed to remove physical and social barriers and allow children of all abilities to play together in the same space.

While this is the County's first inclusive playground, County Manager Michael Kaigler said he'd like it to be the first of many and thanked the Board of Commissioners for their support on the project.

"This (area) is truly a recreation hub, and it's fitting that we have a facility here that can address all needs in this community, so no matter what your ability, you can come out here and have a good time, and that is a testament to our Board of Commissioners," he said.

While the playground has been open for use, Steve Proper said the recent finishing touches include a paved track around the playground and a pavilion.

"I hope that everyone can enjoy this facility for years to come," he said.
